

LETTER OF RECOMMENDATION

April 11, 2024

I am writing on behalf of my commendable subordinate, Ms. Keerthana, who I have been privileged to work with as her Project Manager at Infosys Limited, Chennai. As someone who has gained great insight into Keerthana's ability to blend technical prowess with astute leadership and team commitment, I am fully confident in her potential to succeed in your MS program and beyond.

Keerthana has continuously demonstrated her proactiveness and commitment to going beyond the call of duty. A case in point is when she single-handedly spearheaded web development projects using React.js, JavaScript, and CSS for a prominent telecom company. Her proactive attitude and diligence in every task assigned to her, manifested in her creating numerous functionalities and reusable components to enhance code optimization and project efficiency. Keerthana is not the engineer who merely ticks off work requirements, she takes it to the next level, invariably leaving a significant impact on all projects she is involved in.

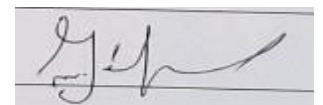

In addition to her technical prowess, Keerthana's leadership capabilities are second to none. She naturally gravitated towards leading projects, thereby setting a precedent for her colleagues. The evidence of this leadership extends beyond her professional work to extracurricular activities at work. Her drive, evident in her securing runner-up position in the "FSADM Award for Excellence" in mixed doubles badminton, and got nominated in Open-Source Refactoring, success story for ReactJS skill tag, demonstrate her balanced perspective on leadership and teamwork.

Indeed, Keerthana's ability to balance leadership with teamwork is remarkable. Her constant support to her teammates and her insightful contributions to conflict resolution have played a significant role in fostering a positive team environment. She understands the importance of collaboration and is well-acknowledged in our team for her ability in managing version control using Git, thereby ensuring seamless code management and cohesion within the team.

However, no candidate is without room for improvement. Keerthana occasionally struggled with her inability to say no, often taking upon herself more than she could comfortably handle. Recognizing her limitation, she has started seeking help to improve her skills, and we have seen improvement during our feedback sessions.

Keerthana has incessantly proved to be an invaluable asset to our company and given her robust technical proficiency, stalwart leadership, and excellent team play coupled with her constant endeavour to better herself, I strongly believe she will be a stellar addition to your esteemed program. I enthusiastically endorse her application to your MS program and am eager to see the accomplishments she will undeniably achieve in her future career.

Sincerely,

Krishnan G M
